▶ LU LIU, Combinatorial implication of computability theory.
School of Mathematics and Statistics, Central South University, Xiaoxiang Rd, China..
E-mail: g.jiayi.liu@gmail.com.

Most of newly arising computability theory (reverse math, algorithmic randomness theory or even computable model theory) has close connection with combinatorics, and in many cases, finite combinatorics. In this talk we show that a relativized version of a naturally arised reverse math question is equivalent to a (purely) combinatorial question.